

A Short History of Batch Systems

Thursday 15 May 2025 10:15 (45 minutes)

Batch systems are dating back to the time of punch cards. For most of the computer users are not confronted with them anymore, the processing of tasks is hidden from them. But in the world of high performance computing they play still a crucial role.

The history of batch systems is in fact also a history of supercomputing.

Presenter: BOLLIGER, Christian (ETH Zurich)