

Low-energy precision tests of spacetime symmetries

Thursday, 12 September 2013 09:10 (20 minutes)

Recent experimental advances have opened an avenue for the study of spacetime symmetries at distance scales beyond the Planck length. This talk provides some theoretical motivations for such investigations, discusses the prediction of experimental effects, and reviews some low-energy tests in this research field.

Primary author: LEHNERT, Ralf (Indiana University Center for Spacetime Symmetries)

Presenter: LEHNERT, Ralf (Indiana University Center for Spacetime Symmetries)

Session Classification: Th - 1